Grammar School Graduates to Hold Exercises Tonight

At the commencement exercises of the grammar schools of Glendale, which will be held at the T. D. & L. theatre tonight, 186 pupils from Intermediate and 26 from Cerritos Avenue will receive diplomas and presumably all will be registered for entrance in Glendale High next fall.

Just how all these boys and girls will be accommodated at the high school is the problem before school officials now, as they must also find room for the graduates from Eagle Rock grammar schools, the students from Sunland, Tujunga, etc.

It will mean additions closely approximating 250 against a graduating class of 145, who will receive high school diplomas next week.

Blobs, Blubs and Blabs Never Do a Thing in This World

Sleeping, weeping and talking do not remedy the troubles of this world, according to James W. Foley in the Listening Post this evening. In his characteristic, philosophical way Mr. Foley has designated those who are prone to take refuge in the above three methods of expressing their interest in activities as Blob, Blub and Blab, who never are of any use and never do any good on this sphere.

"Some minds in the world are calloused, show evidences of thinking, and others are just soft and flabby," asserts the poet and philosopher.

Why should the dogs of Los Angeles have to wear a particular style of muzzle is one of the questions which is puzzling Henry James this evening and in his subtle comment on the day's news he states that the "salesmen of that concern surely have winning ways." He sees about a 300 per cent profit in the retail purchase price of the wire muzzles which the dogs are by law required to wear.

In the editorial columns of the paper this evening you will find some mighty interesting paragraphs on the kaiser's book. Besides this there are the usual features, including Della Stewart, John Pilgrim, Dr. Crane and eastern point of view.

TOASTING GLORIES OF '22 CODES HAVE BANQUET

Department Leaders Tell of Work and Aspirations Success Achieves

By MARJORIE MAY YARICK
(Written exclusively for the Glendale Daily Press)

Most exclusive was the group of high school students who gathered together last night in the high school cafeteria. The occasion was the annual C-O-D-E-S banquet given for the members of the five departments of the student body. These letters mean respectively Cabinet, Oratory, Debating, Explosion and Stylus. Thus, it was the leaders of the school who met together in accordance with the custom established several years ago.

After the beautifully served dinner, Lucy Strother presided as toastmistress over the series of toasts offered by department leaders. Miss Strother told the origin of CODES before introducing the speakers. Several years ago it was the custom of the Explosion staff alone to enjoy an annual banquet together. But in 1919 this staff expanded in size and invited the other departments represented in CODES to enjoy the banquet with them.

The first speaker of the evening was Maynard Toll. His subject was the Cabinet, and he very cleverly and concisely told of the spirit and the co-operation among the Cabinet members and their importance relation to active student body life.

Miss Charlotte Rominger then very brilliantly toasted the faculty, particularly those present at the banquet.

One department which has become known and recognized throughout the state by its splendid work in past years is that of the Oratory. George Jordan spoke highly and well of the growth of interest in this department, praise which has been thoroughly deserved by all of its members.

Following this, Doris Packer, who recently won first honorable mention in the Californian Shakespearean contest at Berkeley, told the history of oratory and debating which has dated back long before newspapers, and of the increasing power and influence of fine debates and lectures. Especially in Glendale has the department of debating won merit.

Another necessary branch of school life is the weekly school publication, the Explosion. Edited and published under capable students this paper is, as Victor Colburn stated, a splendid organization to train young people in cooperation and leadership.

Each year the senior class puts out an annual, called the Stylus. Paul Hutchinson expressed the dedication of this year's Stylus, "To the Spirit of the Student Body" as a splendid and worthy one. He also explained and praised the various features of the Stylus, and of their advance ahead each year.

As the principle reason for the banquet is to eat, Walter Sullivan gave a cleverly expressed toast to Miss Hanson's cooking class, as an appreciation of the splendidly prepared repast. Following these toasts Victor Colburn, with a few well-chosen words, presented debating pins to the following people: Gold pins to Paul Hutchinson and Kathleen Campbell; silver pins to George Jordan, Dale Woods and Victor Colburn, and bronze pins to Helen Sherwood, Harold Majors and Isabel Tousey. These pins represent the number of winning debates participated in by the students.

After Mr. Moyse had spoken very enthusiastically of the new debating coach, Mr. Harold Brewster to be here next year, Kathleen Campbell offered the last toast of the evening to the activities of the student body as a whole. She voiced the undeniable advantages of being in school activities, of grasping these opportunities to develop talents and to be leaders of a large and influential student body, such as Glendale Union High school.

"And so it is," which was the motto of the banquet, that Miss Campbell concluded the evening with the thought that to be interested and useful in high school, or in any institution, a clear and definite motive is necessary for success, and for advancement.

GLENDALE ON WOOLWORTH STORE MAP

Opening Friday Places City in Line with Big Business Centers

1154th BRANCH STORE

Management Surprised at High Class Employees Obtainable Here

With the opening of the F. W. Woolworth store on Friday, Glendale takes a stand with all the bustling, active, live-wire towns of the United States. The opening is an endorsement of business activity and prosperity of Glendale. Woolworth's avoids all other communities.

Friday, June 16, marks the opening of the Glendale store at 111 North Brand boulevard. It will be the 1154th store in the United States and Canada. The opening means the Glendale public will be enabled to buy a better grade of merchandise for less money.

A reception to the public will be held Friday from 2 to 5 and from 7 to 9. It is hoped that Glendale's public will inspect the new institution and note the values oered. There will be a musical program.

The Glendale store is in the San Francisco district. R. W. Webber is district manager. H. W. Stevenson, local manager.

In telling of the new store, Mr. Holbrook, district superintendent, stated:

"We offer quality as the first thought and price as the next. You will nd in our Glendale store just as good merchandise and at just as reasonable prices as you will find in any store in Los Angeles, New York or other larger cities."

It is Mr. Holbrook's belief that the Woolworth company will fill a long-felt need in supplying Glendale with this class of merchandise.

The first successful Woolworth 5-cent store was opened in Lancaster, Pa., in 1879. Today Mr. Woolworth is owner and operator of 1154 such stores and is the greatest retail merchant in the world.

His employees, for the most part, are girls and young women and every convenience possible is given them for their comfort. In the Glendale store the girls have a comfortable, well-ventilated restroom where they may rest when fatigued.

The stupendous buying and distributing power of the Woolworth organization makes possible the selling of many articles at a very low price.

A few of the specials to be found in Glendale are the famous "Lorraine" human hair net, double mesh, to be sold at 10 cents each. These have been 15 cents elsewhere and should be of interest to every woman. A splended stock of aluminum ware is on hand, and is guaranteed to be pure aluminum. There are many wonderful bargains, too numerous to mention.

That Woolworth merchandise is of a quality appealing to all classes of shoppers is shown by the striking success of their Fifth avenue and Fortieth street store in New York City, which was opened in 1918 in the most exclusive shopping center in the United States. More than 45,000 people entered the store on the opening day. This store has the same class of goods and the same prices as those offered in any Woolworth store in the country.

It is absolutely guaranteed that no price is above 15 cents for any article in the new Woolworth store.

TENTATIVE PLANS FOR LEGION HOME ARE DISCUSSED

No Action Taken at Meeting of Sub-committees on Construction

Several tentative plans for the building of the auditorium and legion building on the property now held by the organization under option, were discussed last night at the meeting of the general building committee. No action was taken on any of the plans as they were mere suggestions, and offered with the idea of giving something definite to work on.

The suggestions were discussed freely and later referred to the administration committee of the general committee for further investigation and development.

Rules to govern the meeting of the general and all subcommittees were offered, and after several slight changes, adopted.

Reports of the various subcommittees were called for. These reports in the main hinge on the final report of the architectural committee regarding the selection of architects to oversee the erection of the building.

This committee stated that it was not ready to report until several more architects had been consulted.

The committee on placing a valuation on the lots to be sold out of the tract by the legion reported that prices had not been determined on for the lots to be sold, as the members had not had an opportunity to meet.

All committees were instructed to meet before the next regular meeting of the general committee, and formulate their reports.

BAPTIST FIGHT NEARS CLIMAX

INDIANAPOLIS, June 15.—The fight between conservatives and liberals for control of the Northern Baptist convention reached a crux today.

Upon the result depended whether the church shall adopt a policy of "progressive religion" or adhere to acceptance of the Bible in its literal form, without allowance for allegory.

Fundamentalists were prepared to attack the report of the general board of promotion, which dealt with expenditure of more than a million dollars during the past year and made recommendations for future policies.

U. S. TO PROBE BAY CITY STRIKE

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The department of justice has assigned a special agent to the San Francisco district attorney's office to assist Attorney Williams in conducting the open shop war probe in the Pacific coast building trades. A mass of evidence has been compiled, according to word reaching the department, and preliminary reports already are under way to Washington.

Organized Play

The beginning of vacation and the arrival of the heated summer period combine to form a young people's problem which presents itslef now for solution.

The young people's summer problem affects not only the city but it ramifies through every household. In its simplest form it is the question: "What shall we do with the young people this summer?"

In the larger cities the problem is met by the employment of a play superintendent, for, strange as it may appear, children have comparatively little initiative in playing, their efforts undirected soon degenerating into a display of animal spirits and mischief. Neighborhood nuisance, plainly speaking.

The organization of play for the benefit of the young people of the city is one of the civic developments that should be given serious consideration now, before the heated term arrives, so that the young people may be interested immediately after the discipline of school is relaxed. A little later and it will not be so easy to organize them into playing forces for their own recreation.

There are ample facilities here for this feature of modern handling of the children's problem.

There are large, and soon to be deserted athletic fields. There are the mountains back of the city for picnics and excursions and the exploring of nooks and crannies of the rocks. In fact, there are in Glendale many resources from which the child mind will extract infinite amusement and instruction, the latter unconsciously, provided the mind is directed through organized play.

The first step toward the organization of the play of young people during the heated period was taken when the board of education authorized the expenditure of $400 for work of that character. A second step is indicated. The city council should set aside a similar or larger amount and begin the organization work now.

The playgrounds, the school athletic fields, should be set apart during the summer for the use of the instructor in play. A schedule of play should be prepared at once by the instructor.

With a proper program of daily events, competitions and those things that go to make up recreative instruction under the head of play, the anxiety of parents as to the kind of companionship their children develop during their months of idling will pass away. It will be no longer necessary to watch and guard the children from evil associates during the most trying months of the year, when the restless, unoccupied minds innocently seek channels of activity, be whatsoever its environment and influence on their future lives.

The right to play is one of the most striking progressions of modern life. With it goes the responsibility to see that the young people get most out of their play for their mental, spiritual and physical upbuilding, during the period of rapid absorption and growth.

Glendale should not lag in recognition of this right of her young people.

LABOR URGED TO ACTIVITY IN POLITICS

A. F. of L. Pledges Support to United Mine Workers

SUPPORTS RAIL MEN

Leaders Ready to Accept La Follette's Program of Court Veto

OHIO NATIONAL GUARD ARMORY, CINCINNATI, June 15.—The American people will "rise in their might and drive from the halls of congress" any legislators who do not "broaden out and help free labor from its shackles—shackles in part fastened on it by the courts," James O'Connell, member of the American Federation of Labor's political campaign committee, declared in a speech to the federation convention here today.

O'Connell declared that if organized labor will support the nonpartisan political campaign which is to be conducted this summer and fall to elect to congress men friendly to labor, "we'll bring such tremendous pressure to bear as will retire many of our antagonists from public life."

On a motion of W. D. Mahon, Detroit, representing street car men, the convention, by a unanimous rising vote, pledged its support to the United Mine Workers in the coal strike now on.

"Certain sinister interests" have been trying for two years to maneuver the men in railroad shop crafts into a position "wherein unions can be crushed," B. M. Jewell, head of the railroad employes' department of the American Federation of Labor, declared in a speech to the convention today.

"We are ready for the test," Jewell said.

American labor leaders are ready to accept and actively support Senator La Follette's program giving congress the veto power over the courts.

Unless a decided change in sentiment occurs meantime, it is probable the American Federation of Labor convention here will formally approve the La Follette program next Wednesday.

In supporting La Follette's suggestions, labor leaders today said they realized that the congressional veto was a revolutionary step, with unlimited possibilities. They predicted that it would be denounced as a blow at the constitution and the stability of the American democracy.

The federation today ordered a drive made to bring "white collar" workers into union ranks. A resolution was adopted directing that an organizer be sent among office workers, in an effort to recruit from among the 2,000,000 of such employes in the United States a strong labor organization.

BURGLARS VISIT MANY HOMES HERE

Four Houses Entered and Property Taken Without Trace

Robberies are still the order of the day in Glendale. Several homes of Glendale were entered last night and a number of things of value were taken. The police department, under Chief Fraser, is right on its toes in its effort to hold the robberies down, and to bring about the arrest of the crooks.

The home of J. A. Pope, 113 South Central avenue, was entered between 6 and 9 o'clock last night and a number of things of value were taken. Entrance was gained to the home via an open rear door. Officers Booth, Kerns and Hutchinson were detailed on this case but up to the time of going to press the criminals had not been apprehended.

Mrs. May E. Wright, 124 West Doran street, reported that her home was entered last night and a number of very valuable papers stolen. Up to the present time no arrests have been made in this case. Officer Kerns was detailed to the case.

HOUSING PROBLEM EXPERT TO TALK BEFORE FORUM

H. V. Haymaker of Toledo to Be Principal Speaker

One of the ablest speakers in the United States will address the members and friends of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce tonight at the regular monthly Forum meeting of that organization. H. V. Haymaker of Toledo, O., and a recognized authority on housing problems, is to be the speaker of the evening.

Notification of this address was given yesterday to members of the Realty board by E. P. Hayward, secretary of that organization who, in making the announcement, said that he heard a similar address by Mr. Haymaker at the Realty board convention in San Francisco. He urged that all members of the local board attend this meeting, as Mr. Haymaker is an interesting speaker and gives new lights on one of the most important subjects of the present day.

During the World war Mr. Haymaker was appointed head of the housing commission of the United States, and won recognition from the government for his work.

He addressed the Realty board convention by special invitation. He is spending a short time in Los Angeles before returning to his home in Toledo, and chambers of commerce of the Southland are taking advantage of the opportunity offered to have him address their memberships. He spoke Monday before the Los Angeles chamber.

The chamber is departing from the rule governing the holding of Forum meetings. It is a rule that these meetings are for members of the organization only. Because Mr. Haymaker is so well informed on a problem of vital interest to everyone in the city, the bars have been let down and the public is invited.

Music will be a part of the program. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Girard have consented to sing two duets. Community singing will also be another feature of the program.

Following is the program for the evening:

Community singing—"America," Mrs. W. Q. Widdows, leading.

GLENDALE LODGE GREATEST OF ALL, MURPHY

Past Exalted Ruler of Redondo Beach Elks Makes Flag Day Speech

Eulogizing Glendale's Lodge of Elks, E. J. Murphy, past exalted ruler of the Redondo Beach lodge, pounder of that home, sergeant-at-arms of the California State Elks' association delivering the Flag Day address last night, declared:

"I don't mean to disparage in any way or slight in any degree any other individual lodge of Elkdom in our country when I designate Glendale lodge as the greatest of them all."

His address in full follows:

Exalted Ruler, my Brother Elks, Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is an exceedingly happy privilege to stand in the presence of my brother Elks and their guests tonight and to briefly respond to your most gracious welcome. I count it a splendid honor to address this patriotic and loyal lodge of Elkdom, whose magnificent achievements constitute an unsurpassed story of civic and fraternal progress.

There has never been a time or moment in my life when I have felt a greater measure th warm glow of fratrnal friendship that I feel here tonight in the glorious city of Glendale within whose limits here lives and breathes America's greatest unit of Elkdom whom I again proudly greet with admiration, love and affection that springs from the heart.

I do not mean to disparage in any way or slight in any degree any other individual lodge of Elkdom in our country when I designate Glendale lodge as the greatest of them all, it is simply a statement of the impression that is indelibly engraved on my heart by association with the patriotic and loyal leaders and members of this lodge who by their sheer strength of character and indomitable faith and courage have erected here a fraternal structure that is the wonder and admiration of our brotherhood.

I proudly confess my love and admiration for Glendale Lodge No. 1289 of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

God gave all men, all earth to love,
But, since our heart are small,
Ordained for each, one place should prove—
Beloved over all."

And, my brothers and friends, we are gathered on that beloved spot tonight to inculcate by word and by deed our loving devotion to the greatest symbol of liberty our world has ever known—the Stars and Stripes of the United States of America, one and inseparable!

Just 146 years ago today Old Glory first saw the faint rays of dawn casting the light upon the land of the free and the home of the brave—its broad stripes and beautiful stars tenderly and loving fashioned by that deal little American lady, Betsy Ross, whose name in letters of gold leads all the immortals of the world.

And from that day on, my brothers and friends the Red, White and Blue has never wavered, but has steadfastly presented its message of Liberty to all mankind. That great message has been supported by the united citizenship of our country whenever necessary and they have never wavered in following the flag that is so dear to us.

In every hour and in every clime, in the dust and slime of hideous warfare, beneath the blazing tropical sun or the thundering star-lit heavens of the European battle line, men have eagerly followed it and have asked no greater honor than to die in its defense.

And among them always were to be found the brothers of Elkdom—some there were who are with us tonight as we honor the flag for which they fought and some there are who sleep their last long sleep in other lands, all of them deeply enshrined in our hearts—forever—equally loved and equally honored. Each did his part to perpetuate the idealisms of a free land and the everlasting honor of its glorious symbol.

Everyone of you won the war—
You and you and you,
Each one knowing what it was for,
And each what his part to do.
Everyone of you won the war,
You and you and you.
You who came with unscathed hea
Your who halt with broken tread,
Everyone of you won the war,
But most of all you dead, you dead.

Oh, silent and secretly moving throng,
In your many, many thousands strong,
Coming at dusk—when the wreaths have dropped
And streets are empty and music has stopped—
Silently coming to those who wait—
Dumb at the door and dumb at the gate,
And hear your step and run to your call—
Everyone of your won the war,
But oh, you dead, you dead, most of all!

And they asked no greater honor, my brothers and friends, than the honor of offering their lives on the altar of American patriotism.

And my friends, they have not died in vain—the flag for which they offered and gave all still blazons forth each day from its lofty eminence, the message of liberty and justice and love from the mightiest nation in history.

From every Elk lodge throughout this broad land it proudly flutters its message and my friends I feel that I cannot permit this occasion to pass without paying tribute to our great orders Americanism and to recall to your minds the firm foundation upon which the splendid Brotherhood of Elks was erected— —that same foundation upon which rested one who lived and died for us—the boy, born in Bethlehem, many centuries ago, who, all of his life taught and practiced and was faithful to the great principles of charity, justice and brotherly love. And all that He ever asked us to do, my friends, was to love one another and to practice charity, justice and brotherly love!

In this hour and this day there is no greater need in this land we love than the application of these principles to our daily lives and to our fraternal friendships. Even our own beloved order is facing a tremendous task in presenting these great principles, but it must emerge with its honor unimpeached and its integrity unsullied.

There are those within our borders to whom the teachings of patriotism, charity justice and brotherly love seem to have been momentarily forgotten and in their stead has been engendered suspicion and distrust and hatred and the formation of associations that are not only foreign to the character of our nation, but are most dangerous to our own great fraternal institution beneath whose branching antlers and whose shining star men meet who have come from the far lands of the earth and from every walk of life and from every race and creed and whose loyalty and whose faith in humanity should be of common mould.

Within this order of lofty ideals and patriotic sentiment there is no room for those who wavering in their Americanism—there is no room for those who do not love humanity. There is no room for those who seek to divide the citizenship of our united nation into hostile camps and there is no room for those who fail to respect the laws of our country or its flag and who believe themselves immune from the scourge of public opinion.

I count them in my mind as not being worthy sons to live beneath the stars and stripes of this great country and if, unfortunately they are numbered among our own fraternity I count them as being unworthy members of an order that is synonomous with the very highest ideals of American citizenship. Elkdom my friends cannot and must not stand for a half-baked brand of Americanism. Elkdom must stand for the hot burning passionate devotion to that glorious symbol of our country, the Red, White and Blue, that starry banner that has never supported and never will support an unworthy cause.

This beautiful emblem we caress in our hearts as a priceless heritage and to those of us who wear the tiny antlers of gold and the gleaming star on the little clock that points so steadily to eleven, there can be no greater expression of devotion and loyalty than our constant and faithful support of all it represents.

And my friends and brothers, that flag is calling to us again today—calling as strongly and as clearly as it has ever called before—pleading that the men and the sons of men of our nation may render to it the utmost reverence and respect, hoping and praying that those who are sowing the seeds of discontent throughout this broad land may again be brought to their normal senses.

To my mind, our brotherhood can do no greater good at this time and in the years to come than to spread broadcast and to exemplify the principles and doctrines of what is known as the American's creed, a creed recently adopted by the grand lodge of our order.

I know that every Elk within the sound of my voice tonight fully subscribes to this great creed and I know that every true Elk stands ready to oppose and will oppose any organization that does not obey the laws of our country or fails to respect constituted authority.

There has never been a time in our order when there was greater need of men with indomitable courage and steadfast convictions to combat insidious inkuence and disloyal citizens, but those of us whose faith and confidence in the precepts and teachings of our organization remains unshaken know that that hour will never strike in Elkdom when its heart will be reached by those who have lost the touch and ideal of America and who have permitted the baser elements of jealousy, disloyalty and hatred to take the place of brotherly love and justice. But, my friends, I assure you, they of whom I speak must not pass the deadline within the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America no more than they passed who recoiled from that unyielding wall of steel when

Out of Verdun, as from a throat of brass,
Tongued by a silver hammer, came the cry,
Its words mount like a barrier to the sky
And bar the Wild Wolf's way:
"You shall not pass!"

So spoke at Marathon for you and me
The Greeks who drove the Persians to the sea;
So spoke the audacious Herman in that hour
When his bold soldiers broke thte Roman power,
Sinking the legions in the black morass
With the stern battle cry,
"You shall not pass!"

E'en so at Arleans spoke the sainted maid
Cowering the English with her stainless blade;
So trumped bold Drake and racked the host
Of Philip's armada from England's coast.
And saved the western world, so too
The Iron Duke spoke at fateful Waterloo,
"Not even a Nepolian shall pass!"
To tread the nations into withered grass,
And was it all for naught? Shall these mad fools
Crush us to powder that their will shall rule
And make our land a sacrifice to Mars?
No! is written in the eternal stars—
Across the heaven's blue—"They shall not pass!"
No miracle of menace and no malice shall avail,
"They shall not pass! They shall not pass! They shall not pass!"

SPRING POETS TO BE DINED BY PROGRESSIVES

Event Set for June 26 in Auditorium of Chamber of Commerce

That Glendale has hidden in its depths some poets, will be proven at the "Spring Poet's Dinner" to be given June 26, by the Progressive Business Men's club, in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce. Keen interest is being taken in preparing the poems for this occasion, and there is no doubt but what some great literary talent will be revealed, which has heretofore lived in obscurity, and that Glendale will come to realize with pride that she has been entertaining poets unawares.

Plans for the dinner were discussed Wednesday at the club's meeting and luncheon, held at Ye White Inn.

The membership is looking forward in joyful anticipation to the social hour at the Harrower laboratory, as the guests of Dr. Harrower, Tuesday evening, June 20.

"Buzz" Sutton was unanimously elected to serve as sergeant-at-arms at all future meetings.

The secretary, James Howarth, read encouraging letters from Lee H. Irvine, national secretary of the organization, and from Tom Feeney, secretary of the Progressive Business Men's club of Ogden, Utah.

President Kelly has called a meeting of the directors to be held at Whitaker's Broadway pharmacy at noon, Friday.

It was announced that the annual convention of the Progressive club would be held at Salt Lake City, August 31 and September 1. The Glendale club will send two delegates to this convention, who will be selected at next week's meeting.

George M. Lindsay suggested that hereafter an "attendance prize" be given at each meeting, and this plan was adopted.

The membership committee reported an enrollment of 40, with prospects for an additional 10 by the close of the month.

Dr. Harrower had charge of the entertainment features and added inspiration to the meeting by reading two of Frank Crane's "Four-Minute Essays." Other members told some good, wholesome stories.

The meeting was opened by the singing of "America," and closed with the singing of the old popular songs, "In the Good Old Summer Time," and "Old Black Joe."

Guests of the club were Glenn R. Dolberg, Burton Chandler, Harry Lyms and Dr. Walter P. Crowell.

A Year Ago Today

(From the Glendale Daily Press of June 15, 1922.)

W. E. Evans left this morning on a business trip to New York. On the return trip to Glendale he will stop at Washington, D. C., where he will deliver to Congressman Lineberger the voluminous petition of Glendalians for an independent postoffice.

The members of the graduating class of the high school were the guests last night at a banquet at the school, served and prepared by members of the cooking classes.

W. I. Gilbert delivered the oration, "The Flag and What It Stands For," last night at the Flag day celebration, held in the lodge rooms of the Elks' club.

The Stylus, the high school annual, put out by the senior class of the high school, came out yesterday and has established a record as being the first Stylus ever put out exactly on time. It is also the best Stylus ever put out by the class.

Mrs. Psmear (the artist)—I wonder if you've ever seen any of my pictures?

Mrs. Gazippe—I reckon I have. I've seen about everything on the screen; I'm a regular movie hound.

HAIL AND FAREWELL RINGS THROUGH HIGH SCHOOL

Checking of Credits, Registration of Students Keeps Teachers Busy

By Gertrude Gibbs

Among school heads of Glendale High these days it is a case of hail and farewell. In the midst of checking the credits of seniors, and of bestowing upon them the pins which represent honors won, they called upon to register the students who are to be students next year and confer with them relative to programs so that the work may all be organized in advance and sessions begin when school opens without the delay of making out a program then.

It is to the credit of these hard-worked principals and assistants that they keep sweet and smiling and manage to have time for everybody and for the immense amount of clerical work which their tasks entail.

Because of the congestion which makes impossible full assemblies of all the students, the honor pins are being bestowed in a different way this year.

At the boys' assembly held Wednesday, when Paul Edmonds was made secretary of the boys and president of the boys' league, and at an assembly of the Girls' League, at which candidates were nominated, in addition to those who had previously qualified as nominees for the presidency, bronze pins were bestowed as follows:

Class 1922—One-star pins to Maetha Eilers, Elsie Jepson and Lois Zeller.

Class 1922—2-star pin to Newell June; 3-star pins to David Foltz and Virginia Wheeler.

Class 1924—2-star pins to Stanley Johns and Helen Robison.

Class 1925—1-star pins to Lee Osborne and Ida Olmstead.

THE FLAPPER

There's one new thing I can't portray,
My pencil simply won't obey,
I cannot blame, I cannot praise,
The thing that's called in modern phrase,
The flapper.

My words and syllables get mixed,
Just when I think I have them fixed,
My pencil wabbles when I try
To paint this modern butterfly,
The flapper.

With garments short at either end,
I won't condemn, I won't defend,
This subject of my brilliant rhymes,
This prodigy of modern times,
The flapper.

She's too much in the limelight now,
That's why I dare not tell you how
To act if you should chance to meet
This nondescript upon the street,
The flapper.

Her face is painted like the rose,
She scatters perfume where she goes,
And by her cute coquettish ways,
Earns for herself the flipper's praise,
The flapper.

Now having said as much as this,
I hardly think 'twould be amiss
If I should make my bow and say,
"I'll let her go her own sweet way."
The flapper.

HUNDREDS CROWD JAPAN TEA STORE

The prize drawing of the Japan Art and Tea store was held last night in the assembly room of the chamber of commerce. The first prize, a $50 baby buggy, was won by a bachelor, O. E. Summers, of the engineering department at the city hall. Several hundred attended the drawing.

The china tea set was won by Miss Edith Price. Miss Louise Moniot won the china chocolate set offered as third prize.

Several other prizes of tea and merchandise, carried by the Japan Art and Tea store, were also awarded.

One of the laughable features of the evening was the pie-eating contest participated in by six Glendale boys and girls. First prize was won by Charlie Cline, who ate his pie in record time. Irene Rose was not far behind him in stowing away her pastry, and was awarded second prize.

MEXICO SEEKS SOUTHERN AID

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 15.—The intensive campaign of the Mexican government to strengthen its relations with the republics of South America is viewed by certain diplomats here as part of a new drive by President Obregon to obtain recognition from the United States.

A strenuous press campaign has been started, official Mexican news being distributed through a South American news agency with headquarters in Rio. Mexican officials always are prompt in expressing the official viewpoint on all questions, particularly on those regarding relations between Mexico and the United States. Reports of revolutionary movements, or bandit activities, always are promptly denied or minimized.

THOROUGHLY REFORMED

Mrs. Dryden—"So your husband has quit drinking and gone to work. There's that much good to the credit of prohibition."

Mrs. Juniper—"Yes, it's all due to prohibition. He's got a swell bootleg trade and sells forty quarts of moonshine a week."

The toplofty usually have lofts to rent at the top.

CITY COUNCIL TO HAVE INTERESTING SESSION

Street Proceedings to Occupy Attention of Board

An interesting session of the city council will be held in the city hall tonight. Among the various things that will be discussed will be the budget for the ensuing year. The council has been discussing this budget for the past several weeks and it is expected that at this evening's meeting the matter will be finally settled.

The regular street proceedings will be taken care of. At this time the council is making a strenuous effort to have the streets of the city put in first class shape, and consequently at each meeting a considerable amount of street work is either started or ordered in. As a rule the streets of Glendale are in good shape, but there are some that need attention.

The various tracts that are being opened in the different sections of the city are demanding new streets, and at each meeting new streets are ordered opened and laid out, while the work on many is being ordered in.

In addition to these there will be other matters that will occupy the attention of the "city fathers" to night.

Ground work for continuance of Genoa discussions will be laid by representatives of France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium.

WHITE SHRINERS OF JERUSALEM HOLD SOCIAL

Play Cards and Have Merry Time at the Masonic Temple

An altogether delightful social affair was the party given Wednesday evening by the White Shrine of Jerusalem for members and their friends, in the banquet hall of Masonic temple.

The White Shriners are all old friends and congenial ones. Whenever they get together they have a good time. On this occasion about 125 gathered around the tables for a jolly evening of "500" without much regard for whether the scores were large or small. No very sensational records were made, and when prizes were awarded the recipients were surprised. Mrs. Walter Jones, who topped the list among the ladies, received a very beautiful hand-painted dish of lustre china. To E. U. Emery went the gentleman's first prize, a handsome cardcase and pack of cards. Consolation favors were bestowed upon Mrs. O. E. Von Oven and Lloyd Wilson.

At the close of play, cake and coffee were served, the tables being spread with paper scarfs of yellow and white, the White Shrine colors.

Mrs. Warren Roberts was chairman of the committee of arrangements and was assisted by Mrs. Orma Naudain, high priestess of the Shrine, and by Mr. B. F. Bourne, who holds the office of king.

Others volunteered for service when refreshments were served.

The full membership of the reception committee of which Mrs. Roberts was chairman, included Mrs. Porter M. Custer, Mrs. Ralph E. Smith, Mrs. Mae Warrick, Mrs. J. W. Wyvell, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Bourne, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Cutting.

READING CIRCLE HOLDS ANNUAL PICNIC

Gather Under Shadows of La Ramara Trees Amid Flag Decorations

Sometimes there is social ice to be broken at a picnic as well as the ice which makes tempting the pink lemonade, but there was no refrigeration of that sort to be dispelled at the annual picnic of the Mutual Benefit Reading Circle held Wednesday noon at La Ramada under the far-reaching boughs of a huge pepper, and with the great green wall of a Verdugo hill glimpsed through its pendant branches. It was a gathering of 200 close friends.

It was Flag day, and a red, white and blue color scheme of table decoration had been cleverly worked out by Mrs. Rowe, who had charge of that feature. Centering each table was a red, white and blue liberty pole, capped with a tri-colored rosette capped with flags, and with streamers of the same colors radiating to the sides and ends of the table. Above the board hung red, white and blue balloons and fringes of tri-colored paper. The luncheon favor was a red, white and blue candlestick and candle with a red paper flame, which, when withdrawn at a signal from the program chairman, was found to have attached some bon mot, such as "The oftener you look back the faster you don't go," "Keep a-goin'," and other nonsense of a kindred sort.

The reception committee, composed of Mrs. A. A. Barton, chairman of the circle; Mrs. H. V. Henry, vice-chairman; Mrs. A. H. Brown, past-president of the Doran street P.-T. A., and Mrs. Evans, president of the Acacia Street P. T. A., were there to give the really, truly glad-hand. Best of all, Mrs. Carl Vierick, who had charge of the cafeteria luncheon, dispensed from picturesque palm-covered booths, had a corps of well-organized assistants in Mesdames Horner, Thompson, Jepson, Bruner, Shaw, Halvorsen, E. L. Young, McLean, Lewis, Hanning, Aicholz, Kenzy, Brown, Hall, Waller, Dame and Magill, who, in an almost magic way, saw that every one had a huge helping of everything in sight.

At a small table were seated officers and special guests of the day, Mr. Swartz, the sculptor, and Mrs. Swartz, who are occupying La Ramada and who invited the circle to use the grounds; Mrs. John Robert White, retiring president of the Glendale P. T. A. Federation; Superintendent Richardson D. White of the city schools, and Mrs. Archbald, past-president of the District Federation of Parent Teachers' associations.

Fine after-luncheon addresses were made by Mr. White and Mrs. Archbald, a beautiful word of greeting from Mrs. Charles H. Toll, founder of the circle, was read, and Mrs. Sinclair Whytock, who, with Mrs. H. V. Henry, was responsible for the program and who acted as toastmistress, presented to Mrs. Barton a very beautiful basket of flowers with a poem expressing the love and appreciation of the circle.

Mrs. Barton made appropriate response and then called upon all who had contributed to the success of the picnic to stand and receive the thanks of the circle.

Chairs were then readjusted to face the platform and James W. Foley, the poet, charmingly entertained with a garland of stories, and his poems, in his very best manner.

Hearnshaw, Mrs. Frank Hester, Mrs. Charles Sanders, Mrs. Alfred Muhleman, Mrs. William A. Gibson, Mrs. H. Lee Clotworthy, Mrs. William A. ## MISS CLARA RINGERT ENTERTAINS CLUB

About 75 couples enjoyed the jolly dance given Wednesday night by the Rebekahs at Odd Fellows hall, corner West Broadway and Orange street. Music for dancing was furnished by Carol McManus' orchestra from Los Angeles, and was exceedingly "peppy."

The spacious hall was artistically decorated with flags in honor of Flag day. Refreshing punch was served during the evening.

Mrs. Leonard Pease and her committee were in charge of the dance, which was certainly a huge success.

It was announced that the Glendale lodge had been invited to attend the reception to be given for Mrs. Marie Steinman, grand warden of the state assembly, Tuesday night at 7:30, in Pasadena.

Miss Anna M. Reed, 417 North Brand boulevard, left today for VanNuys, where she will spend several days visiting friends.

CHAPTER L MEETS AT ROSCOE HOME

Chapter L., P. E. O., was charmingly entertained Wednesday at the ranch home of Miss Isabel Isgrig, near Roscoe.

The morning hours were devoted to a business session in which the guests sewed for the True Love home in Los Angeles. At noon a delicious chicken dinner was served, assistant hostesses being Mrs. Lunette Hunt, Mrs. Pearl Tower and Mrs. Emma Burket.

In the afternoon a splendid program, in honor of Flag day, was given, the subject of the program being, "Is Patriotism Dead?" The meeting opened with the singing of "America." Miss Waunita Emery read a paper on "Conditions Surrounding the Recent War." A talk on Red Cross work was given by Mrs. Ann Bartlett, and Mrs. Nettie Brown told a little about the war relief work. Mrs. Betty Burket gave a splendid talk on "International Relations." "Patriotism at Home" was the subject of a paper given by Mrs. Dorothy Weller, who followed this by reading Wilbur Nesbitt's poem, "Your Flag and My Flag." This was followed by the salute to the flag, and the meeting closed with the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Truths in Epigram

How bitter a thing it is to look into happiness through another's man's eyes! — Shakespeare (1564-1616).

'Tis just like a summer bird-cage in a garden,—the birds that are without despair to get in, and the birds that are within despair and are in a consumption for fear they shall never get out.—Webster (1638).

THE KAISER'S BOOK

An American publisher has been informed that it would be useless for him to offer less than a million dollars for American rights to the ex-kaiser's book. Such an offer might be far worse than useless. It might be disastrous. The publisher to make it and have it accepted would be in a predicament. He couldn't get his money back.

It is impossible to conceive how, outside of Germany, there could be demand for the volume. That it will contain little or nothing of value, but much that is puerile, and totally without value, is a safe prediction. For many years before the madness of William had plunged the world into war, the fact that he was mentally incompetnet was generally accepted. He possessed a wide but superficial knowledge of which it was his delight to babble. He was preacher, artist, musician, but distinctly commonplace in each role. Yet he thought himself equipped to teach the masters of them all. He believed himself divinely inspired, when nothing but his wicked ambitions were stirring.

The fallen monarch, regarding himself still as one of the world's great, and a martyr, does not even possess intelligence to be grateful that he is permitted to breathe the air of comparative freedom, or to breathe at all. His volume could not well be anything but an attempt at self-justification. Therefore it must be made up of distortions of truth, of vainglorious boasting, and of aspersions on the generation that could not appreciate the benison of being ruled by a half-crazed and wholly mistaken zealot. There seems to be no reason why there should be any demand for the book in this country.

HUNTING FOR TREASURE

Hunting for treasures always has allured the human mind. The theme has been the basis for countless tales. These tales have in some cases resulted in actual search for mythical stores of gold and jewels. Many a desert island has first known human tread when the searcher, inspired by the spinner of yarns, has landed upon its hostile shores looking for phantom caches, and seeking to read signs that never were there.

The quest for the Lusitania, great ship long buried in the sea, is somewhat different. The ship went down at a spot that may be located with accuracy. It carried with it wealth in a form rendering it immune to destruction. Where first it struck the ooze at the bottom of the deep, there the hopeful think it still to be resting. However, there is no certainty either that it can be found, or having been found, can be removed. It lies at a greater depth than ever yet has been exploited by men in diving armor. In the effort to reach it new devices have been made. Perhaps they will serve the purpose, perhaps not.

A surviving officer of the vessel cites a possible difficulty that the adventurous souls seem to have overlooked. The ship when it sank took so sudden a plunge, and at such an angle, that the end first submerged must have struck bottom while nearly two-thirds was above the surface. That would have made the impact terrific. In all probability, with the ship so nearly up-ended, the jar tore the machinery loose, precipitating it in a jumbled mass. Quickly there followed an explosion of the boilers, and what effect that may have had on the hulk, there is no way of knowing. The idea of the exploiters seems to be that the Lusitania, intact, its hoard unscattered, awaits their coming. On the other hand, if the diver is able to descend to the spot at which he expects to board the ghastly wreck, he may find no trace of wreckage, the currents having swept part away, and the floor of the sea swallowed the remainder.

OPPOSING THE BONUS

News from Washington is that the bonus bill is to pass the senate. Notwithstanding this belief, the opposition to it is pronounced. On the democratic side the hostile forces are led by Williams, and on the republican side Borah has elected himself to the leadership. Since the gentlemen are supposed to be fighting a losing battle, it is evident they intend to go down with tongues flying and gesticulating arms unfurled. Perhaps they stand for principle. It is possible that they long to have the country pay its debt to the ex-service man, but their principle forbids advocacy of such course. They are not particularly to be envied. It is not easy to see what they expect to accomplish. Certainly they cannot have in view the increase of their personal popularity.

When the claim is made that this country cannot afford to keep its pledges to the soldier, it is interesting to recall the statement recently made in the senate that war contractors stole four billions of the public money. If the government were to get after these contractors and force restitution, the problem of paying a bonus would be greatly simplified.

It is true enough that it would be pleasing to realize that not an individual concerned in war activities was inspired by other than purely unselfish and altruistic motives. The charge is made now that the soldiers were not thus inspired; virtually that they went into service for what they hoped to get out of it. The injustice of this accusation puts it on a plane so low, that to reply to it one would be forced to stoop. So the privilege of answering will be waived. The fact is worth noting, however, that the charge is formulated mostly by people who stayed at home, many of them to flourish as profiteers, all of them to benefit by high wages. The more they gained, the louder they cry now against "putting the dollar mark on the flag."

THE UNWISE CENSOR

A film censor is quoted as saying "the people are not fit to judge for themselves." In this one sentence she showed herself unfit to judge for them. In these few words she brought a severe indictment against the whole scheme of censorship. While it is true that certain individuals think the people lack sense enough to know what they want, and what is best for them, such individuals are narrow in judgment, opinionated and harsh. Their conceit is colossal. By what hypothesis are they entitled to superior station? Who clothes them with authority to determine, as a small factor in the social structure, what is desirable for the vast majority?

The attempt to regulate the morals and the habits of thought of all with whom they come into contact, is an activity peculiar to the small-souled. The reformers do not realize that in themselves they soon becomes offensive. The more they advocate a cause the stronger the prejudice they are sure to create against that cause; which possibly is unfortunate, since the cause itself may be good.

To select a man or woman, or a small group, and delegate to them the power to tell all the parents in the community what they and their boys and girls shall be permitted to see on the screen, or read in a book, is worse than mere nonsense, for it naturally excites antagonism. It is a restriction of constitutional freedom. There are abundant laws already that cover the matter. The laws prescribe decency, and the police are more than welcome to enforce them. It is because the public knows what is fit and what unfit, that these proper and necessary laws have sympathy and support. It is for the same reason the public resents interference with its rights, such interference carrying the implication that the public is gross and depraved, or ignorantly foolish in the manner of a wayward and untaught child.

NEW CRISIS IN EUROPE

"New Crisis in Europe" has become so familiar a headline, that one cannot but wonder what happens to the series of crises. Most of them seem to fade away. The latest use of the headline (at this writing, with conditions subject to change without notice) pertains to conditions in France. These conditions are not wholly pleasing to contemplate, and yet they may pass without tragedy, there being abundant precedent; of course to be succeeded by others equally lacking the element of calm.

Had France consented to reduction of the amount Germany must pay in reparation, the bankers, it is believed, would have lent a large sum to Germany. The effect desired was to enable Germany to meet the lessened demand, and at the same time be eased financially so that restoration of its currency to approximately normal, might be possible. This, it was felt, would be beneficial not alone to Germany but to the monetary world. The willingness to make the loan rested partly on the belief that Germany could not meet reparation demands as they exist, but would try to meet them as reduced. To this plan France would not consent, and thus the project came to naught.

Now the idea seems to prevail in France that the loan should have been made without any change in the terms of reparation. Indeed, it seems to have been thought by the French that the loan would be made. In the absence of the loan, they appear not to know what Germany will do, nor what France ought to do. They feel aggrieved at everybody concerned. It is this that constitutes the latest crisis.

POETRY AND POSING

By. DR. FRANK CRANE

A good many persons seem to think they can write poetry simply because they can put unusual words together. An idea, however, is not particularly worth while simply because it is perked up in a new attitude.

Much of the new free verse, and much of the old verse that was cut into proper lengths, is simple bosh. If what one says means nothing, why say it?

"Beachcomber" in the London Express properly caricatures some of the stuff that alleged poets endeavor to get across by calling them translations from out of the way languages.

For instance, he mentions the scholarly rendering of love songs from the original Szlchvo-Molczchakian, one in particular which was called "Shznply Pn Bchzzsl," which begins:

Hourra, my braves!
The snow is deep on Kbzchlzy,
The wolves howl in the Zyncs Pass.
I go to win myself a bride!
Ho! Her relatives are dogs.
Her father is a pig.
Shynply! I will bite him in the stomach. . .

Among others he cites three poems of Snorko Ksjkzcs, which are literally translated as follows:

I.
DAWN.

As the pale light flitters down
From the snow peaks of Rzbzzke
It falls through my window, as I sit gazing at the mountains sadly,
There is an ear upon my table.
Whose?

II.
TO A WOMAN WHO HAD SLIGHTED HIM BY REFUSING TO ACKNOWLEDGE THE GIFT OF A ROSE IN THE MARKET-PLACE AT CZCHBRVCS.

It was, then, you?
You!
Gschzzsle!

III.
CRADLE SONG.

Hou, hou, hou,
Sleep, my little wolf.
Granny's in the forest
Howling like a bear!
Daddy in a temper,
Stamps on Auntie's nose.
Hark at Auntie's squealing.
What a merry noise!
Pan! Here comes a soup dish!
Look at Uncle's knife!
Kn slv tkchy Pkrrzmly!
Sleep, my little wolf.

All of which reminds us of what W. S. Gilbert says in Bab Ballads:

And his gentle spirit rolls
To the melody of souls.
Which is pretty, but I don't know what it means.

(Copyrighted by Dr. Frank Crane)

THE LISTENING POST

The Philosopher walked down the road.
And saw three persons sitting beside the roadway.
One was fat and lay on the grass.
One was red-eyed and wept.
One was waving his arms and declaiming.

* * *

They were considering the state of the world.
Which they agreed was bad.
The fat one on the grass listened sleepily.
And finally fell asleep.
And snored loudly.

* * *

He walked as the Philosopher came up.
And looked at him sleepily.
His face was flabby and jelly-like.
For he had never worked much.
Or exercised his mind.

* * *

Thinking leaves lines in the face as working leaves callouse on the hand.
Some minds in the world are calloused.
Show evidences of thinking.
And others are just soft and flabby.

* * *

The fat and sleepy one lay on the grass.
And made no move to rise.
He was lazy and indolent.
And in thick and meaty tones he vented his unhappiness over the state of the world.
And the Philosopher called him by his name: "Blob."

* * *

Then the weeping one bewailed loudly.
Tears streamed from his eyes.
And coursed down his cheeks.
The woes of the world oppressed him.
Bathed him in tears.

* * *

And as he wept and dried his eyes and wept again the Philosopher addressed him.
Called him by name.
For he seemed to know all three of the by-sitters.
And the Philosopher called him "Blub."

* * *

And the third one orated.
Waved his arms and declaimed.
He was a practiced speaker.
Words flowed from him like water from the mountain stream.
And the Philosopher addressed him.
Called him by name:
"Blab."

* * *

And the troubles of the world went on.
Blob swept through them.
Blub wept through them.
Blab talked through them.
But none of them did anything.

* * *

And as the Philosopher passed along on his way they still sat by the road.
Blob sleeping.
Blub weeping.
Blab talking.

* * *

And when there are troubles to be remedied.
When there is work to be done.
When there are battles to fight.
We find in the world a good many Blobs, Blubs and Blabs.
Who sleep, weep, talk, but do nothing.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

A Life-Lesson—James Whitcomb Riley (1852-1916)

There! little girl, don't cry!
They have broken your doll, I know;
And your tea set blue,
And your play-house, too,
Are things of the long ago:
But childish troubles will soon pass by—
There! little girl, don't cry!

There! little girl, don't cry!
They have broken your slate, I know;
And the glad, wild ways
Of your school-girl days
Are things of the long ago;
But life and love will soon come by—
There! little girl, don't cry!

There! little girl, don't cry!
They have broken your heart, I know;
And the rainbow gleams
Of your youthful dreams
Are things of the long ago;
But heaven holds all for which you sigh—
There! little girl, don't cry!

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

MR. McCALL'S LESE MAJESTE

[Springfield Republican]

Mr. McCall should think three or four times good and hard before taking the mad plunge. It is almost party treason to enter the republican primaries against Senator Lodge. It is already planned to dub Mr. McCall "an assistant democrat," if he inconsiderately offers himself as a republican candidate for the senate. The crime of forcing a show-down in the primaries of the Lodge and anti-Lodge forces lies in the fact that the vote would reveal how many anti-Lodge republicans there are in Mr. Lodge's own state. There would probably not be enough of them to defeat him for renomination, but, argue Mr. Lodge's managers, it wouldn't be helpful in any event to have the number known. They make a good point.

WOMEN AND SAVINGS

[Washington Star]

At the conference of mutual savings banks, in session at Atlantic City, one of the delegates said that the wife is the money-saver of the family that she is usually the better business man of the conjugal firm, that "the average woman spends less on her clothes than the average man," that "women whose husbands earn between $2000 and $3000 a year are much more economical than men," and that "men are more extravagant in the matter of luxuries, such as lunches, cigars and amusements."

The delegate saying this was a woman, and no doubt could qualify as an expert on women and their habits. It is not altogether pleasing to have her classify lunches and cigars as luxuries, and she must mean certain kinds of lunches and cigars to which most men are strangers. It is perhaps putting some strain on the English language to apply the word "luxury" to the average lunch, and in the matter of the average cigar, well, well—it is not a luxury.

But there is a sound foundation for the remarks of the delegates at this convention, tending to confirm a suspicion which very many husbands have but which they do not admit in the presence of the household, because "discipline must be maintained" and because Mrs. Wife already has a pretty well settled conviction that the responsibilities of the home depend mainly on her.

The home-making and home-building instinct is strong in most women. It is they in most instances who urge the man to "buy" a "little place" and who do the most heroic skimping and paring of expense accounts to meet the payments on the home. The wives who try to keep up with the Joneses are not as numerous as the husbands who dig too deeply into their net earnings to support the character of "good fellow," "popular man" or "sport."

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA E. STEWART

Trouble isn't all there is of life. Of course we sometimes find ourselves thinking that it is. That's human nature. Some of us can't be happy unless we convince our neighbors that our health is the worst, our operation the most critical, our children the most provoking, our work the hardest, our husbands the most careless of all. We get red in the face and almost peeved if they venture to asert that their troubles are fully as great. Don't we?

Right here we fail to remember that all things in life are comparative. Of course our affairs have an awkward way of going wrong occasionally, but if a great many things didn't go right with us, in between the troubles, we would not notice the latter so much. It's the contrast that makes them more vivid.

If we're going to get through life with any degree of satisfaction for ourselves and comfort for those nearest, we must learn to put the emphasis on the happy spots. Why pick out the rainy day in the week to scold about, when the other six have been mild and sunshiny? Why not declare our happiness over these and forget the other? We can make ourselves miserable if we want to. There's no law against it. And some of us seem to want to.

But if we do enjoy misery, we need to remember just one thing: other people, even our own families, should not be compelled to enjoy it with us. If we prefer to be downcast and solemn and sulky ourselves, what's the use of making every one else in the household feel as if he wished he were under the sod, out of it all?

Every home should have a private growlery into which its inmates could go in solitude to mourn and sulk, if mourn and sulk they must.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

There is a side to the dog muzzling question that has been touched upon but lightly by the citizens of Los Angeles. They have made protests on behalf of their canine friends, which was noble enough considering that they themselves were being ignored, and the fact rubbed into them.

HENRY JAMES

The muzzle required is of wire. To place upon it the value of fifteen cents would be to allow the war price both for material and labor. Yet this instrument of canine torture costs the owner of each good sized dog $1.50. At a guess the observer would say this represents a profit of 300 per cent.

This is interesting as applying to the agitation concerning hydrophobia and kindred imaginary dangers. The thought occurs that a firm engaged in the manufacture of muzzles, and finding itself overstocked might be moved by a not wholly altruistic regard for the public health. Perhaps the thought is unworthy, and places dealers in an undeserved light. Still, the agitation, not for muzzles alone, but for a particular style of muzzle, is a little hard to understand. This muzzle, so far as determined by the conduct of the unlucky wearers of it, has small effect aside from its power to cause discomfort. The dogs are aware that they are being insulted. They seek to get rid of the incubus, and it would not be surprising if some were to get so wrought up about it as to lose their naturally good tempers and become real onery.

However, this wanders away from the main theme, which is as to why the muzzle must be of specified material and make turned out by one concern. The salesmen of that concern surely have winning ways.

Thirteen men of Breathitt county, probably the most celebrated county in all Kentucky, are on trial for murder. In fact the episode on which present proceedings are based, embraced the sudden demise of four voters. The dispute had its origin in politics, and its end in a revolver shower.

The men are not pleased. They resent the interference of authority. They ask that the case be dismissed on the ground that the whole affair was a "fight among friends."

A Breathitt county fight among people not inspired of friendly feelings must be a serious matter.

The managing editor of the Los Angeles Express was to speak to a gathering of movie folk. In announcing the fact, other papers mentioned him as managing editor of an evening paper. The Express itself was even more reticent. It admitted that a newspaper man was to speak.

The gentleman in question is A. Y. Tully, a modest person who never talks unless he has something to say, and who is likely to kick at the printing of his name in this paragraph.

A few days ago the courts of Washington refused to order a wife to pay alimony, or stand the costs of a divorce action. The court did not express any real opinion as to the merits of the issue. It could not find a precedent for payment of alimony by a wife, and therefore declined to order it done.

The courts pay too much attention to precedent. Perhaps no husband ever before demanded alimony. This could not affect the righteousness or the unrighteousness of his claim. The court simply lacked the confidence in its own judgment to establish a precedent based on unprecedented conditions. Perhaps sometime there will be a tribunal with the courage to use its own judgment.

There is a law on the books defining as a felony the act of an automobile driver who drives while drunk. For some reason such conduct never has been treated as a felony, but rather as an incident of traffic.

Recently a driver alleged to have been drunk, ran over and killed a pedestrian. He ran away from the scene of accident, but was captured later. By running away he committed a third crime, provided that the intoxication was in itself a crime, for even with the leniency that so often prevails, the killing was of a criminal nature.

It is to be hoped that on one of the three counts the driver may be retired from circulation in centers of vehicular traffic for a long time.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

An hour or so ago the door opened and a good looking young man came in. He placed a card on my desk.

"May I talk to you just two minutes?" he asked.

Well, he was in and I am easy going and so I told him to shoot. His was a sad story. All sorts of hard luck, you know, but if he just had money enough to telegraph a friend he could pay his bills and get out of town. He had the name of the friend and everything.

"The only security I can give you," said he, "is to turn my eyeglasses over. I'll redeem them as soon as I hear from my friend."

"When did you change your name, Jim?" I asked.

It is all of ten years since I saw him, but during his spiel I had placed him. So we sat down and had a little heart-to-heart talk. He said he had found that begging pays better than working.

"I usually clean up ten to fifteen dollars a day with this stunt," said he. "I buy eyeglasses by the gross."

He said—and his point of view is that of a man who knows—that we Americans suffer from a duty complex. He said that we have been so begged of and softened during the last few years that most of us think it is our duty to relieve distress whenever relief is demanded of us. He said that we have lost the hard-eye we used to have and that we rarely think of investigating a case that is presented to us. If the other fellow says he needs the money, and can say it with an affecting tremolo, he gets it.

He had found by experience that street begging does not pay. A hobo, he said, can get just as hungry as a well-dressed man, but we are used to hoboes. We have them pegged. When one of them slinks alongside and begins to mutter some indistinct plea we just shake our heads and hurry on. So, being a dainty kind of a chap anyhow, and preferring to wear good clothes and clean linen, he has made begging a high art. He has half a dozen stories now—each of them convincing—and when he enters an office building he works it as thoroughly as though he were selling books.

No doubt he is right. Most of us lack the courage to say "no" to a man who looks us in the eye, though we throw in the waste basket letters received from mint-marked charitable organizations that are actually doing good work. But our easiness is only half the story. The rascal had built up a personality. He could sell steel bridges if he only tried.

According to the United States department of agriculture, all the chestnut trees east of the Mississippi will be wiped out by 1940 by the chestnut blight which was brought to this country in a small shipment of Oriental chestnut trees.

MORE BOY SCOUTS ARE NEEDED HERE

New Troops to Be Organized in Verdugo Hills District

More Boy Scout troops are needed in the Verdugo Hills district and particularly in Glendale. Four new troops are needed in Glendale, two in Burbank, one at Roscoe, one at Sunland, one at La Crescenta, one at Montrose and two in Eagle Rock, Scout Executive H. F. Bone stated last night in his monthly report to the executive board of the Verduga Hills district, Boy Scouts of America.

Mr. Benenr said that the scout movement is growing so fast in this district that troops cannot be organized fast enough to accommodate the numbers of boys applying for membership.

He reported that a new troop has been organized in Burbank, sponsored by the American Legion, and that a recent meeting held there, the Legion, the chamber of commerce and the Ministerial association, have agreed to sponsor troops.

The Glendale post of the Legion has also agreed to sponsor a troop of scouts in this city.

Thoop number two of Glendale has re-registered with eight tenderfeet, nine second class, six first class, six merit badge, five star and eight Eagle scouts. The number of scouts allowed in one troop is 32 but a special permit has been granted the local troop for a membership of 42. This troop is to be sponsored by the Congregational church. The committee appointed by the church to handle the affairs of the troop is as follows: Chas. L. Chandler, chairman; A. A. Firton and Walter H. Packard.

Peter L. Ferry, chairman of the camping committee reported to the the board that arrangements for the 1922 Boy Scout summer camp, to be held on Catalina Island, are ocmpleted and indications are that this will be the biggest organized camp in the history of the Boy Scouts of Glendale.

NEAR EAST WORKER REPORTS TO REV. JOHN HEDLEY

Eagle Rock City Pastor Receives Letter From Dora Farmer

An interesting close-up of the Near East relief operations, child feeding, industrial, hospital, etc., at Kazochi-Lopot, near Alexandropol, Armenia, where American philanthropy is maintaining the largest orphanages in the world, is contained in a letter dated February 22, 1922, from Miss Dora Farmer, a relief worker, which recently reached Rev. John Hedley, pastor of the Eagle Rock M. E. church.

Miss Farmer and Rev. Hedley were associate as Y. M. C. A. workers in the A. E. F. in France.

Kazachi post, Miss Farmer's station, is one of the three groups of old Russian military barracks which the government has turned over to American Near East relief. Six thousand orphans now occupy the buildings, which are used as schools, dormitories, workshops, hospitals, dining rooms, baby wards, bathhouses, laundries, etc.

At Miss Farmer's writing, the war-ravaged mile-high plateau where Alexandropol stands was sealed in snow and zero temperature, but, thanks to American relief, more than 8,000 orphans were alive and treated in the various orphanages there.

Miss Farmer's letter, in part follows:

"I want to tell you of the work the Near East relief is doing here in Armenia for the little, homeless waifs and strays who are picked up roaming the streets. The children gathered in are in rags, verymin-covered, hardly recognizable as human beings with their pinched faces, protruding stomachs (sign of starvation)—just bundles of bones and filth. It is hardly believable that children can live in such a state. But it is so in Armenia, where thousands and thousands are starving with no future before them. The new own government is unable to help them.

"Sixty per cent of the children the Near East relief adopts are diseased, the first place they go is to the hospital, where they get a little flesh on their bones and sickness treated. The most prevalent disease is trachoma. We are fighting it, however, and one of the three hosts at Alexandropol, Seversky Barracks, is for trachoma cases alone. The post is now taking care of 2000 cases. (Trachoma is the dreaded Oriental eye disease, which causes blindness.)

"The aim of the Near East relief is to keep as many kiddies as possible to feed, bathe and clothe them and teach them a useful trade, as well as give them a rudimentary education. The food of these orphans consists of a little meat, rice, beans, grits, dehydrated turnips, onions, bread, and vegetables when ever possible. The food is boiled in immense iron kettles holding 50 gallons. Most of our supplies come from the States.

"Nothing is wasted. Seventy-five per cent of the orphans eat out of condensed milk cans, and even the dehydrated turnip tins are made into small mush bowls.

"The barrels of old clothes which come from the states are a boon to us. The old clothes form a unique department, for it keeps many people engaged in sorting the dresses, underwear, stockings, coats, hats, boots and everything, into different piles. Clothes that need mending and patching are sent to the mending room; boots and shoes which fill our greatest need are sent to the shoe shop. Absolutely nothing is wasted."

COST OF LIVING IS LESS HERE

Roy D. King Makes Comparisons With Los Angeles

Roy D. King, the real estate man of East Broadway, is becoming more convinced every day that Glendale is the best town in the country in which to live.

On account of property interests in the Angel City Mr. King has been away from Glendale part of his time during the last few weeks, and from actual experience he has learned that living expenses are much less here than elsewhere, he says.

The English tourist approached Farmer Stubbins.

"How charming are these surroundings, sir," she began, smilingly.

"They be, madam," replied the farmer.

"And how sweet the song of the thrush," she continued.

"Aye, madam," returned the son of the soil; "but the song o' th' thrush is nought compared with th' lay o' th' 'en."

"Glendale Property Grows"

ONE OF THE BEST BUYS IN THE NORTH BRAND BOULEVARD DISTRICT

One of the best buys ever placed upon the market is offered to the public by the W. Wallace Plumb company, realtors, with offices at 220 North Brand, a picture of which appears above. This elegant home is located on the southwest corner of Lexington and Brand, and is one of the best east front properties on the north side. The house is a modern eight-room structure, and rents for enough to carry the price of the property. Until recently it was occupied by the California Academy of Music. The property is owned by Plumb brothers, and can be bought at the right price on terms.

This property has a frontage of 104 feet on Brand and runs back 155 feet on Lexington. When it is desired to remove the building the lots can be divided into 25-foot business lots, thereby allowing four store rooms on Brand and two rooms on Lexington. From present indications the continued growth of North Brand will demand the entire frontage for business purposes within the next few months, so rapid has been the growth of the residential district to the north. From the standpoint of an investment this is one of the biggest buys on North Brand.

Dowd, of Glendale, has also become associated with Mr. Sullivan, and from present indications these three live wires will do a good business.

REALTORS DISCUSS MULTIPLE LIST SYSTEM

Must Submit Rules Before Members Will Accept New Measure

The majority of the members of the Glendale Realty board indicated at the meeting of that organization yesterday that they favored the adoption of the multiple listing system they agreed that the system would not be adopted until rules and regulations for the operation of the system have been presented and adopted by the board. This agreement was reached after more than an hour of heated discussion of the measure.

A report of the committee appointer several weeks ago to investigate this system of listing property for sale was submitted with the explanation that this was the same report submitted on April 11. The report recommended that the board adopt the system as used by the Long Beach and Toledo, O., Realty boards. It also recommended that the governing committee be instructed to prepare rules and regulations for handling the system and to work oht a method of financing.

Several of the realtors, while not actually opposing the measure, expressed the fear that in the event the system is adopted in Glendale considerable difficulty will result in the listing of property.

The plan calls for the exclusive listing of property with a member of the board for a stated period. This member is in turn to list the property with the entire board and in the event another member of the board sells the property the commission is to be divided. Some of the realtors expressed the fear that the securing of an exclusive listing under the board plan would be difficult.

Members of the board who attended the convention recently held in San Francisco explained this difference to an extent by saying that experts on the plan had pointed out that in the event an exclusive listing is secured from a property owner who did not care to place his property in the hands of more than one agent the agent securing the listing can reserve it as his exclusive listing.

Charles B. Guthrie spoke in favor of the measure. He contended that if the system was not successful the big offices of the east and on the coast would not adopt it. It is a co-operative system of handling real estate for the good of the board, the town and the clientele.

The multiple listing system is of benet to the agent as it guarantees that he can deliver a house or piece of property at the time a sale is made and collect his commission without trouble.

The talk by Mr. Guthrie went a long way toward explaining several clouded points of the system.

The boverning committee will prepare regulations for the system in the event of its adoption by the board and the membership will vote on the measure later.

ONE HUNDRED FEET OF NORTH BRAND BRINGS $18,000

W. Wallace Plumb Co. Sells Property Between Lexington and Doran

Another good sale of North Brand frontage was made this week when the W. Wallace Plumb company, real estate brokers, at 229 North Brand, sold 100 feet between Lexington and Doran for a consideration of $18,000. The frontage was purchased by a non-resident who later may decide to erect a brick business block.

"This bears out the often repeated statement," said W. Wallace Plumb yesterday, "that the business district is gradually extending northward, and that it will be but a short time before North Brand will be built up solidly with stores as far as Doran street. We have had unbounded faith in the north side, and from information we gather on all sides, must believe that there is still real money to be made on North Brand business property. Many investors are preparing to build on the boulevard, and while there may be a temporary let-up in building for the next three months, I believe," said Mr. Plumb with emphasis, "that the fall months will see the greatest revival in building ever witnessed in Glendale. Glendale is going to be a real city, and the person who fails to get a piece of property here makes one of the saddest mistakes of a lifetime."

The W. Wallace Plumb company have made several deals during the past two weeks, and report that inquiries for good property are on the increase all the time.

MONTEVIDEO IN STRIKE TURMOIL

MONTEVIDEO, June 15.—Fifteen days of a street car strike, while workmen stood pat on a demand for more pay from the European companies operating the lines, and while the municipality stood equally firm in refusing to permit the corporations to raise fares, resulted in the decision to appropriate the street railways for the city.

The government merely offered one choice in a manifesto issued, the companies might settle their labor quarrels by paying more money to the workmen, but they would not be allowed to charge heavier tariffs.

The city's strike was spiced up with plenty of bolshevik color, including a bomb, which wounded a child when it exploded on a track. Revolvers were flourished in various skirmishes between strikers and strikebreakers and the homes of several of the latter were attacked. Soldiers protected those who replaced the regular employes.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS LINE UP FOR CAMP

Dr. Dwight M. Smith Will Accompany First Group to Catalina

Secretary Rex Kelley reports that Dr. Dwight M. Smith, who has offices in the First National bank, will accompany the first group of boys going to the big summer camp on Catalina island from July 12 to 22. The announcement should be of great interest to parents of boys who will attend, because with a physician among their number, their health will be doubly cared for.

Besides general supervision of the boys' health, Dr. Smith will give each boy a physical examination and after this "once over" he will advise the boy how to better take care of himself. If any defects of a serious nature are discovered, the parents will be notified.

The first group will leave Monday for 11 days in camp. The local boys will combine with those from Pasadena, Pomona, Burbank, Whittier and Orange county for this first camp. The second camp, July 12, will be made up entirely of the local boys. There are still vacancies in both of these periods. The boys will also be accompanied by Secretary Kelley, who says it is not a requirement that a boy shall belong to the Y. M. C. A. in order to attend either one of these camps. Application must be made, however, either to the secretary, Edwin Murphy, of the Glendale State bank, or C. W. Ingledue.

ESTERN FILM WITH STAMPEDE

"Man to Man," Carey's Latest Super-Western Production

C'mon, see the West, young man. It certainly is a "Man to Man," the Universal-Jewel production at the Glendale theater. The broad sweeps of unfenced grazing kingdoms of Arizona and California furnished the background against which Harry Carey and a strong cast of players were photographed in the action of a virile story.

A stampede of 5000 head of cattle gives enough thrill to the spectator to prove that Stuart Patton, the director, hasn't lost his pep since he directed "Conflict," Priscilla Dean's amazing Universal-Jewel starring vehicle, which provided theater-goers with a whole flock of thrills.

The plot of Jackson Gregory's novel furnished a suitable vehicle for Carey's talent, the central role giving the star full opportunity for that "human" sort of characterization for which he has become famous.

Mrs. John H. Neithardt, 208½ Hawthorne street, gave a luncheon yesterday afternoon, followed by bridge, at the Hotel Vista Del Arroya, Pasadena, in honor of Miss Zelda Rice of Los Angeles, who is to be married, June 27, to Herbert Ferguson of Chicago. The afternoon was spent in a most delightful manner, and Miss Rice was the recipient of hearty congratulations and best wishes from her many friends.

REALTY BOARD TO ASK RESTRICTION

Seek to Protect Residential Districts From Building Below $2500 Value

A resolution was adopted yesterday at the meeting of the realty board requesting the city council to require that in all districts where petitions are circulated asking that the district be designated as a residential section, a building restriction of $2500 be imposed. It also requested the city council to require that the signers of such petitions show that 51 percent of the residents of the district have already complied with this restriction.

The resolution was adopted to prevent the setting aside of a district as purely residential and allowing the erection of garage and temporary homes.

In offering this resolution Chas. B. Guthrie said that he thought that if a district is set aside for homes that a restriction should be placed on the price of the home to be erected. It seemed unfair to prohibit the erection of an apartment house or hotel costing several thousand dollars, and allow the erection of a house valued at only a few hundred dollars.

This resolution will be presented to the city council, and it was indicated that it would be acted favorably on by that body.

Saintliness is measured by service.

STORAGE BATTERIES

Adjusted Specific Gravity

Where the hydrometer shows a low reading for all cells, no attempt should be made to raise the specific gravity of the electrolyte by adding acid until the battery has been subject to a long, slow charge. The maximum specific gravity of the electrolyte is reached when all the acid combined in the active material of the plates has been given out by the charge. Adding acid will increase the specific gravity but will not increase the condition of charge; it will simply give a false indication of a charged condition. For instance, if the electrolyte of a cell tested 1.225 and, without giving it a long charge, acid were added to bring up the specific gravity to 1.275 and it then rose to 1.325 when put on charge, it would show that no points of acid had remained combined in the plates when the low readings were taken. The necessity for adjusting the specific gravity of a cell can only be determined by first bringing it to its true maximum. To do this it should be given a prolonged charge at a low rate and kept on charge continuously until tests show that the specific gravity of the electrolyte has ceased to rise. Should the cell begin to gas violently, while tests show that the specific gravity is still rising, the charging current shoud be reduced to stop the gassing or, if necessary, stopped altogether for a short time and then renewed. If, after a prolonged charge, the specific gravity is still low but not more than 25 points below normal, some of the solution may be drawn off with a syringe and replaced with small quantities of 1300 electrolyte, which should be added gradually to prevent bringing about excess. Should the specific gravity be too high at the end of the charge, draw off some of the electrolyte and replace it with distilled water to the usual level of ½-inch over the plates.

Conditioning Charge

A charge such as has been described is termed a conditioning charge, also an equalizing charge, and is usually carried out about once a month. With the ampere-hour meter now mounted on a panelboard of the latest type Marconi sets, it may be done very conveniently. An ampere-hour meter is an instrument that gives a direct reading of the state of the charge of the battery. For example, with a 60-ampere hour battery, the reading of the instrument will show 60 amper-hours when the battery is fully charged, the hand moving backward as current is drawn from the battery until the zero point is reached. Upon charging the cells, the movement of the pointer is reversed while the action is compensated, so that, when it again reads 60 ampere-hours, 70 or more have been actually sent through the cells to allow for losses, as the efficiency of the battery is between 80 and 90 percent. The batteries supplied for emergency purposes, range from 60 to 224 ampere-hours capacity, the larger ones being employed where it is desired to light auxiliary lamps fro mthem as well as to run a motor generator. To give a battery of this capacity the usual monthly overcharge, the charging current is sent through it until the ampere-hour meter records the maximum charge and its pointer is then set back by hand 50 points, and the charge continued until the maximum is reached.

PHUNNY STUFF

Variometers Unwired

Our kid brother one day last week accomplished this feat. Anyone desiring to have their variometers unwired, audions de-vacuumized, or galena made unsensitive is urged to leave such articles in a place where the baby can reach them.

Skeptic—Say, what is this part of the machine?

Radio Hound—That! Why, that is a tuning coil.

Skeptic—Oh! So that is where the tunes come from. I thought you said they came from KYJ.

Dear Editor: My new set has dials on it with meters ranging only from 1 to 100. I have not hooked it up yet, as I want to receive on 360 meters. Can you tell me where I can get some dials that will tune 360 meters?—L. M. Senseless.

Answer: Yes, Oswald. We highly recommend that you tear the dials of of the clocks and use them.

J. F. DILLON ARRIVES TOMORROW

Get in tune fellows. Get the code buzzing and the old think-box working, that is, if you are scheduled to take the test or examination Friday or Saturday, for our radio inspector will pull into the city of Los Angeles tomorrow. The examinations are to be given in the Y. M. C. A. building, 721 South Hope street, Los Angeles. The commercial exams will be given Friday, beginning at 9 a. m., and the amateur examinations will be given Saturday, beginning at 9 a. m. If you have received a notice for examination you want to hit the deck early, and be sure and get there, for this will be the only opportunity afforded this year to take these examinations without making a trip to San Francisco.

At 7:30 Friday evening, the Los Angeles Broadcaster's association will hold a special meeting in the rooms of the Jonathan club in the Pacific Electric building, Los Angeles, and all members will undoubtedly be present. Mr. J. F. Dillon will be the guest of honor at this meeting, and it is very urgent that a representative of each broadcasting station be present, as time schedules will be discussed and undoubtedly new hours will be arranged. Also, the classification of stations will be discussed with Mr. Dillon, and it will be the one great opportunity to arrive at an understanding on all branches of the broadcasting field.

SIDELIGHTS

It is generally believed that the new system of using the house-lighting circuit for an aerial and ground was brought about by the fuse manufacturers, as reports show that the sale of fuses has increased over 100 per cent since the announcement became public. Chicago Herald and Examiner.

Manufacturers state that they cannot get the parts and wire with which to make equipment. How do they get that way? We always thought that no wire was needed for wire-less.

Sign in a Dealer's Window

"We sell everything in radio from a rotary spark plug to alternating batteries." Wow!

KYJ Makes Record

Official report shows that Hamburger's radio station was heard a distance of 1300 miles by airline and that the signals were very distinct and clear. The receiving station was one belonging to H. Wantuck, Fayetteville, Arkansas.

CARRIES HIS COMPLETE RADIO OUTFIT ABOUT WITH HIM IN SMALL SUITCASE

F. W. Dunmore of the radio laboratory of the U. S. bureau of standards has built a complete radio outfit in a case about one-third the size of the average grip. At a recent meeting of the American Institute of American Engineers in a Chicago hotel, Mr. Dunmore walked about the lobby with the suitcase in his hand while various radio messages were given out through a slit in the case.

The St. Louis Post Dispatch has installed a new and powerful station on top of their building. They are at present completing work on two steel towers, each to be 14 feet square at the base and gradually tapering to a point at the top, with a height of 70 feet, the supports of the tower going through the roof so as to rest upon the steel framework of the building. The aerial is to be of the cage type, 131 feet long and of T design. The set is to be located in a brick building, also constructed on the roof, while the studio in which the singers and musicians will play, is to be upon the second floor. The new station is to have an input of 100 watts, and the average range is estimated at 1000 miles under favorable conditions, although tests with similar equipment have reached a distance of 3000 miles. The station is being installed by the Western Electric company.

ARMSTRONG PATENT

The appeal of the De Forest Radio Telephone and Telegraph company against the decision of the United States district court for Southern New York, which sustained the contention of Edwin H. Armstrong that the De Forest company had infringed the famous feedback patent No. 1,113,149, has been denied by the United States circuit court of appeals, of the Second circuit.

The decision, in part, was as follows:

"The patent in suit was granted for a wireless receiving system on October 6, 1914, and on an application filed October 29, 1913. There are 12 claims in suit. All are held to be infringed by the decree below. The invention relates to improvements in the arrangement and connections of the electrical apparatus and receiving station of a wireless system and particularly a system in which the so-called audion is used as the Hertzian wave detector, the object being to amplify the effect of the received waves upon the current in the telephone or receiving circuit, to increase the loudness and definition in the telephone or other receiver, whereby more reliable communication may be established or a greater distance of the transmission becomes possible.

"The patentee, while a student of Columbia University, living in Yonkers, was an amateur wireless operator and had a station at his home."

RADIO REACHES THE YOSEMITE

CAMP CURRY, Yosemite, June 14.—On the evening of June 9, at 9 o'clock, "Gallagher," at the top of Glacier Point, rising above Camp Curry over 3000 feet, heard the call of the stentor to "let 'er go," the signal to shove the burning embers of the Firefall tunneling over the precipice 1700 fet below in a ribbon of fire.

The voice of the stentor, Don Tresidder, did not come from Camp Curry, however. Across rivers and over mountains and into the gorge of Yosemite, 124 miles away in Stockton, the stentor's voice was carried by radio. A magnavox received it at Camp Curry and sent it on up to Glacier Point.

Over 100,000 people heard the stentor call from Canada to Mexico—at sea, in Honolulu and everywhere. Camp Curry's famous firefall concert was broadcasted from Stockton by radio and carried out exactly as the program is in Yosemite, Miss Carol Weston, violinist; Edith Benjamin, soprano; Glen Hood, composer and singer; Mrs. J. G. Jillson, humorous story telling; Marie Prevost, piano selections; Camp Curry's jazz orchestra, and the call of the stentor to Glacier Point, comprised the concert that was broadcasted to thousands of people everywhere, "listening in."

A receiving set at Stockton held an audience of approximately 10,000 people for an hour. At Camp Curry the guests (about 1000) sat about the campfire. The receiving set was placed on the porch of the main building. The operator tuned in for KWG—Stockton. Out of the magnavox came the voice of Stentor Don Tresidder, followed by the entertainers. It was the first time a concert was received by radio at Camp Curry. At 9 o'clock, "Gallagher," at the top of Glacier Point was waiting to release the Firefall and the stentor's call from Stockton by radio was heard by him up there, over ten blocks above Camp Curry.

The radio audiences throughout the country were drawn together in a word picture by Tresidder, who explained the Camp Curry campfire concerts. It was a novel idea carried out in a novel way.

Don't hesitate to proclaim your own good faults. The other fellow is undoubtedly busy at the other end of your string of qualities.

"Put and Take" Has Rival in Airphone

For the inveterate gambler radio on certain liners furnishes a new field. Reports from the steamship George Washington and the steamship Homeric, which sailed from New York on the same day and reached Cherbourg on May 1, state that passengers were busy betting all the way over on the speeds of the two boats. Each of the ships was kept informed of the exact location of the other by radio, and the betting was done by radio messages.

When a man doesn't care what's for breakfast it is a pretty good sign that it is the morning after.

WHOSE MOTHER WAS THE ANGRIER?

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

I s'pose you think it was funny Diver Beaver's own mother hadn't heard all the goings on. But you remember her house had its doorway down under the water. She could hear a mink's claw if it so much as scratched a pebble. She could hear the fish brush softly back and forth among the weeds. They were her sentinels. You had to dive to bother her; so the noises of the Deep Woods didn't trouble her at all.

It took a lot of noise to wake her up; but that's what the Widow Squirrel was making. Out popped the Paddle-paw. She was puffing her way to shore by the time Daddy Greencrest had blinked the sleep from his eyes and swooped down to where the squirrels bent over the sick beaver kitten.

It was lucky the good duck came. Otherwise fur would have been flying instead of words. The waves were curling too high about Mother Beaver's nose for her to say much till she flopped ashore. So the Widow Squirrel had the first word, and she made the most of it.

"A fine way to bring up children! Such a row as your brat's been raising—it's a wonder the very plants could stay asleep. The owl would have stopped him quick enough if I hadn't been here." (A lot she could have done. Owls know hard words can't hurt them.)

"Diver! Diver!" the beaver screamed the minute she spied her limp little son. What a state he was in! "He's dying!" she wailed. "My poor baby! Your nose, your nose! Some snake has bitten him!" Diver's eyes stayed shut. His only answer was a shuddering groan.

"No it wathn't a thnake," shrilled Frisk. "He dess bumped it on a thtone."

"Your paws, your paws!" the distracted mother went on.

And the little squirrel explained, "That's dess bewwy-prickers he's got in 'em."

"Berries!" She couldn't believe her ears.

Frisk nodded soberly. "Bewwies," he repeated. "And he thaid they clawed, after they wath all thwallowed down inthide him."

"Owl take you, you scoundrelly little fluff-tail," Mother Beaver snarled. "You've poisoned him!"

She Made for Frisk With Such Blazing Eyes That He Fled Screeching

She made for Frisk with such blazing eyes that he fled, screeching.

Mother Squirrel sprang to defend him, teeth bared, tail bristling. But before claws clashed, Daddy Duck interposed his wing. "Ripple! Widow!" he squawked in horrified tones. "This can't go on! We must have a proper explanation."

NEXT STORY—DADDY GREENCREST PLAYS PEACEMAKER.

A colored couple stood once again before the probation officer.

"Now this," the officer said to both, "seems to me to be a case where there is nothing very much the matter, except that your tastes are different. You, Sam, are much older than your wife. It is a case of May married to December."

A slight pause, and then Eva, the wife, was heard to remark in a tired voice:

"I—I really doan' know what you means by yer saying May is married to December. If yer goin' to talk that way, it seems to me to be a case of Labor Day married to de Day of Rest."

The traveler watched the old man going along by the side of the train and every now and then tapping the wheels with a hammer.

"Why do you do that?" he asked.

"Got to be done," said the old man, "and I'm the man for the job I've done it these 44 years."

"Yes, but why is it done?"

"Danged if I ever thought of that," he answered.

PATIENTS REVOLT AT HOSPITAL DIET

MONTEVIDEO (By mail).—Hospital patients as strike leaders are Montevideo's latest novelty in soviet movements.

Recently, on a Sunday, 300 patients in one of the hospitals struck because the authorities refused to let them play carnival. The strikers forced their way out of the building and drove off in motor cars. Thus was the usual picture of the patient, racked with pain, bearing his afflictions with all the patience at his command, completely revolutionized, although curiously enough, the "invalids" finally "decided to return to the hospital."

About a week later, patients in the same institution, claiming that they could not stand a warmed-up rice and milk diet, prepared for a fresh strike. The authorities, in order to prevent such action, called in the police, and 50 guards were sent to maintain order.

It was rumored that the ringleaders had several pieces of old meat, which they proposed to exhibit as samples of the food they were asked to eat.

COAST DISABLED VETS TO ATTEND CONVENTION

1000 Delegates Going to National Meet of Injured Men

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15.—The Pacific coast states will be represented by over 1000 disabled and wounded American heroes of the great war at the coming national convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, according to a statement made here tonight by Herbert V. Coffey, chairman of the convention committee, on the eve of his departure for the Southwestern states, on a flying "booster" trip for the national conclave.

"Veterans' hospitals in California and other western states are sending large delegations to the Disabled American Veterans' convention," stated Coffey. "Many institutions, such as Longview, near Cincinnati, are terrifying examples of mistreatment of the men who were wounded or disabled in action in the war, and particularly those men who are now mentally affected through their experiences of havoc and sacrifce. The convention will demand immediate action to get out mentally disabled comrades out of asylums, such as Longview, where soldiers are mixed with civilians and tubercular patients, in buildings so overcrowded that more than 200 patients sleep on the floor every night."

Coffey proposes visiting every veterans' organization in Southern California, and tendering their officers and members a formal invitation to the Disabled American Veterans' national convention, so that the mighty problems to be discussed, will have the attention of as many ex-service men and veterans as can possibly be reached. In the recent state convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, California jurisdiction, the southern part of the state was well represented, both in numbers and in the selection of the state officers for the ensuing term. Thomas S. Hough of Arrowhead, elected senior state commander, is at present in San Francisco in advance of the big conclave that will bring many thousands of disabled veterans to this city during the last week of June.

A special rate of one-way fare for the round trip has been granted by all railroads, and arrangements will be made by Coffey, while in Southern California, to secure favorable rates on the coastwise steamers for those delegates and visiting disabled and wounded veterans who prefer to come to the San Francisco convention by steamer.

Don't blame the smoking lamp if it suits the indolent owner.

WALTER BRINKOP VISITS GLENDALE

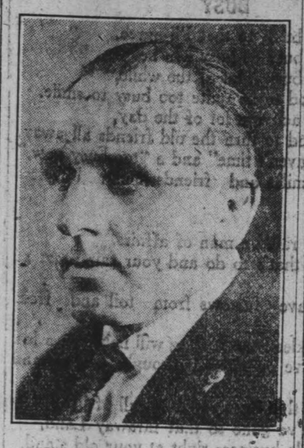
Although politics in general have been pretty dull so far, new life was shot into the situation with the arrival in Glendale yesterday of Walter Brinkop, who is out for the Republican nomination for



WALTER BRINKOP
Service Candidate for State Treasurer

state treasurer at the primaries to be held August 29.

Brinkop is taking a "swing around the circle" in the interests of his candidacy and expresses the utmost optimism as to his ultimate victory both at the primaries and at the November elections.

In spite of the fact that of the three candidates for this office, Brinkop is the only one who can boast of active military service in France and Belgium, he is not going before the voters of the state upon his war record. He believes that his long service in the field of finance, and the fact that at present he is connected with the bond and mortgage department of the Mortgage Guarantee company, is sufficient proof of his actual ability and qualifications for the job. In other words, he stands before the people on his business record.

It is generally conceded that Brinkop has a strong support among the ex-service men and women of the state, not only on account of his brilliant war record, but also because of his untiring work for the American Legion. However, judging from the number and type of membership in the various Brinkop-for-Treasurer clubs which have been formed, it must be realized that men and women in every walk of life are supporting his candidacy.

Brinkop announces that already 54 Brinkop clubs have been formed and that before he finishes his trip they will have grown to over 100. The membership has already gone into the thousands and is mounting by leaps and bounds.

SO. CAL. EDISON CO. MAKES RECORD

Sale of Stock to Consumers Submerges Investment Department

With three days of "John B. Miller Week" passed, the investment department of the Southern California Edison company has made a new record in its sale of stock to its customers and the people in its territory, and has now more partner-owners than any electric utility in the world. At the close of business last night, the force in the investment department was submerged beneath an avalanche of subscriptions and cash remittances which have been pouring in since Monday from every section of Los Angeles and the 335 towns of Central and Southern California, where the Edison company renders electric service. By calling for volunteers from other departments, and working night shifts, the greatest volume of security business handled in the Southwest sinc the Liberty loan drive, is being taken care of with an expedition which indicates that everything will be in the clear at the termination of "John B. Miller Week" next Monday.

"John B. Miller Week" was inaugurated last year by the employees of the Edison company, practically all of whom are partners in the company, as a tribute of affection for their president. Believing in their own company, and having shared to advantage in the steady and continual advance in the price of the stock which they own, and upon which they receive regular quarterly dividends, some 4000 of the Edison men and women are this week putting in after-hour time in presenting to their friends and acquaintances the merits of popular ownership in the company which supplies their electric necessities and explaining to them why ownership in the Edison company gives the people of the Southwest an opportunity to help build up the community of which they are a part.

Knowing the affairs of their own company well, this army of 4000 volunteers are making a noteworthy campaign for popular ownership of public utilities, the principle of finance advocated and adherred to by their president, Mr. Miller.

"I do not want to anticipate the resoults," said Vice-President A. N. Kemp last night, "but I know that they will be gratifying to Mr. Miller, a credit to the wisdom and thrift of the people of the ten counties of Southern and Central California, and another evidence of the efficiency and loyalty of our men and women, who constitute the greatest volunteer sales organization of which I have ever heard."

Former Wrestling Instructor of Gotham to Settle Here

C. Johnson, formerly wrestling instructor of the New York Athletic club, has moved with his family to California, and will locate in Glendale. He is an old-time friend of the popular real estate man, W. H. Sullivan, with offices at 112 South Brand, who had the pleasure of seeing Mr. Johnson win the championship medal as a wrestler in the 145-pound class.

Mr. Johnson has six medals awarded him as a wrestler, and he hopes to connect up with some athletic club in this section.

After a short rest he will take on any wrestler in Southern California who desires to line up with him for a wrestling bout.

J. ALLAN BROCK TO VISIT OLD SCENES

With Grandson, He Will Travel Over Rockies He First Saw in 1884

Mr. J. Allan Brock and his grandson, Allan Brock Nicklin, of 2501 Hermosita drive, Verdugo Woodlands, are leaving Thursday via Union Pacific on an extended trip to Chicago, Washington, Philadelphia and New York, up the Hudson river and Lake Champlain and Lake George to Montreal and Quebec, through the Thousand Islands and Great Lakes, stopping at Belleville, Toronto, Niagara Falls and through to Vancouver by Canadian Pacific. They will spend some time also in Manitoba, where Mr. Brock was connected with the early development of Brandon.

The trip over the C. P. R. through the Northwest to Vancouver will recall pleasant memories of the trip Mr. Brock made through the Rockies and territories often on pony back, taking photographs after the Reil rebellion of 1885.

They will return before the fall school term.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY.

BUSY

It's good to be busy, to that I'll agree,
It's good to be busy as busy can be,
It's good to be busy a lot of the while,
But it's not good to be quite too busy to smile.
It's good to be active a lot of the day,
But it's not good to turn the old friends all away,
With a curt "haven't time" and a "too busy now,"
For we need smiles and friends in our business somehow.

It's good to be rated a man of affairs,
To have work that's to do and your fair share of cares;
It's good to have furrows from toil and from thought,
But some wrinkles from smiling will help you a lot.
It's fine to have conquered through struggle and strife,
But remember that business is not all of life,
And after you've gone to that faraway Land,
Someone will do business right at your old stand.

It's good to go up to the very top shelf,
But don't throw away all the soul of yourself,
Don't get any burden so fast on your back
That all of the nerves in you grow tense and crack.
If you're never too busy to smile quite a lot,
If an old friend is never the once all forgot,
If you'll not let your business crowd love from your soul,
Go to it, Old Fellow, and yours be the goal.

Babson's Letter

EASTERN CENTRAL STATES FAIR, SAYS BABSON

Famous Economist Sees 1922 Better than 1921 in Most Localities

Continuing his personal survey of the business of the country, Roger W. Babson, statistician and business advisor to 16,000 of the country's leading executives, reports his findings on the central eastern states as follows:

"New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and the other large cities, south of New England, prosper largely from three sources:

1. Foreign trade, the sale of goods to foreign countries, even although the goods came from the interior of the country.

2. Jobbing, that is the distribution of merchandise to retailers in the tributary territory.

3. Investments, including the interest received from stocks and bonds, together with the profits involved in purchases and sales of securities.

"There is of course a certain amount of manufacturing in these cities—especially of garments and clothing, but they are not primarily industrial cities.

"Foreign trade is severely crippled for some time to come. Certainly 1922 will show no better than 1921. Therefore we may expect very little income from this source.

"The jobbers will hold their own in 1922 and should have an increase in orders. Although retailers are doing comparatively little busines syet, their stocks are low and they must buy a certain amount of goods whether they want to or not. If the retailers would only cut prices further, which could be done by a decrease in operating expenses, the jobbers would have good business in 1922.

"The real improvement, however, which New York and these other cities are to witness will come about through financial conditions. The bond business should be very good in 1922. The stock market should work upwards and there may be even an old-fashioned boom before the year comes to a close. Deals and consolidations will be put through, dividends will be resumed and other things will happen which should enhance the value of securities. Of course, no wealth is really produced by these increased prices, but they affect the prosperity on these cities. All stock market activity always brings money from the interior of the country into the cities and most of it fails to remain there. The small interior towns furnish the lambs; the cities do the shearing; and the wool remains in the cities to swell the bank clearings and be registered as prosperity The eastern cities will see much more of this money in 1922 than they have seen for some years.

"In a similar way the entire states of New York, Pennsylvania and those others in this eastern group prosper likewise. With the exception of steel cities, which will find another quiet year in 1922, the rest of this eastern section should feel better. Agriculturally these states simply feed their own cities with dairy products, vegetables and some grain. The central part of New York has considerable manufacturing and most of these cities will fare better in 1922. The same is true of Pennsylvania and the other sections.

"The electrical industry of Schenectady and Pittsburg should soon begin to feel the good effects of easy money. Railroads and public utilities of various kinds are only waiting for low interest rates in order that they may sell bonds before giving large orders for electrical equipment. This is also true of the railroad equipment industry. However, money rates should enable the railroads to buy. It should be remembered that after New England, the next section to be hit by the depression of 1920-21 was this portion of the country of which I am writing today. For this very reason, however, New York, Pennsylvania and adjoining states will be the first to follow New England in her recovery. Hence the outlook in these states will be fair. Sales opportunities in these states will be better in 1922 than in 1921. They perhaps have not turned the corner, but they surely are turning the corner.

"As to industrial conditions will say that the state of New York have the best statistics on employment of any state in the Union. These show that in October, the last month for which we have figures, the total wage expenditure of the industries of New York was 32 per cent lower than it was at the peak. The amount of employment was at about the same level as at the beginning of 1915, but the trend is definitely upward, and the decks are clear for an improvement during the year. Approximately the same situation prevails in Pennsylvania.

"Furthermore, in the men's and women's clothing business, which is one of the largest interests of the state of New York, conditions are ripe for a substantial improvement, following upon more than a year of unsettled conditions. The same is true of the building trades, which promise to be very lively in New York City and excellent throughout the state.

"The district as a whole will not commence to feel the full effect of this improvement until well on toward the summer. The opening up of business in other parts of the country will relieve New York City and Philadelphia of some of the crowds of unemployed who drift to these centers in dull times.

"Business confidence the country over seems to be improving slowly in preparation for the upturn which has to come later on. Frantic optimism and futile hoping which marks the path of every business decline is rapidly giving way to the sound and patient attitude which invariably builds up the period of improvement.

"The Babsonchart Index reflecting conditions of all lines of industry and business, stands this week at 18 per cent below normal, a drop of 1 per cent from last week. Make your preparations now for an increase in activity this spring."

READING CIRCLE'S CLOSING EVENT IS ENJOYABLE

Regret at Absence of Mrs. Charles Toll, Its Founder, Is Expressed

By GERTRUDE GIBBS

Great was the regret at the Reading Circle picnic held Wednesday at La Ramada when it became known that Mrs. Toll, who founded the organization six years ago, was not present. The circle was comforted to some extent, however, by the letter she sent which Mrs. Whytock, program chairman, read, as follows:

"Beloved Circle:

"When I was a child and autograph albums were in vogue there was a favorite couplet which ran:

"'Round as the ring which has no end,
So is my love for you, my friend.'

"The circle—the emblem of unity and continuity.

"The name has not been inappropriate in the case of our circle. Its very unity of purpose and the resultant harmony, has insured its continuity.

"And so, 'Round as the ring' is my love for my circle and my interest in your unity and continuity.

"Today is the last affair which our dear junior girls, over 100 strong, are giving. They could not excuse the club president from their fascinating luncheon, so I am unable to be with you.

"But in these days of radio marvels, who shall doubt that a spiritual message may be wafted from you to me, and from me to you? I shall await its coming.

"Lovingly yours,

"ELEANOR J. TOLL."

Richardson D. White, superintendent of schools, was the first speaker called upon and was introduced as the "big brother" of the circle. After telling a string of funny stories he told how flattered he was to be rated as a relative of the reading circle. "Reading," he said, "is the art that has made civilization. Through reading our fathers have been able to hand down to us the knowledge they had so we did not have to start and learn everything from the ground up. All the best things in the past are thus preserved.

"I claim I can see throughout Glendale the effect of having such a circle. I can see it in the children of the mothers who belong. I congratulate you on the work you are doing and have accomplished this year. The wonderful thing about it is that the circle continues to grow. I have seen so many organizations start out with enthusiasm and then die. In this the interest is perennial."

Mrs. Archbald, past president of the District Federation, said that she felt very proud to be included in the family of the reading circle. She dwelt on the big work the circle is doing in educating the mothers and indirectly the fathers, which she considers the big job of the P. T. A. She said:

"I am happy to be able to bring to you today some very encouraging things gleaned from the national organization in San Diego. In an interesting address made by Mrs. Holly of New York addressed to those who have been studying this matter of being a mother, she said: 'We will not see the full result of our work in our own children. We must be content to be grandparents to the fine citizenship we are to have.'

"Leroy Stockton, vice-principal of the teachers' college at San Jose, who spoke at the San Diego convention, is urging a closer co-operation between the teachers' college and the P. T. A. It is his idea that every college should have a course for training of the 'home teacher' as the mother was called. I would go a step farther and put into our high schools an extension course for parents. In the meantime we have these really fine reading circles where the mothers are doing all they can to get this knowledge themselves.

"The Glendale reading circle should be exceedingly proud of what it has done among the mothers of Glendale, and proud of the fact that it has been an inspiration first of all in the first district because there it has shown what can be done and how to do it. The work has gone out into the state and educators in the higher institutions of learning are beginning to feel this end of education has been neglected. When they feel that way we know it is only a matter of time to find some practical way of bringing to parents the education they should have."
